This seemed Providential, and is doubtless congruent with your existing dance with some other parts of the Koch Octopus...:)

Byron,

Great to meet you as well, and Allison speaks very highly of you. Also, my colleagues Annie Hsiao and Adam Kissel also speak very well of you. It sounds like you and Annie are pursuing some interesting opportunities, and Adam manages the Foundation's relationship with Baylor, working with Steve Bradley. We are excited to have an opportunity to learn more about the Project for Accountable Justice, and we are glad to learn of your work in the area as well. I would love to see your book as my masters is in theology, and I am always interested in all thing theological. My address is:

Hello John and Peter (Allison), Glad to meet you. Can you send me your best address and I'll drop a copy of the book in the mail. BTW, I believe I recently met one of your colleagues, Annie Hsiao, at an event in Washington, DC. I look forward to meeting you in person in the not-too-distant future.

All best,

Byron

Byron, kindly meet my new friends John and Peter?
Gentlemen, kindly meet my old friend Byron?
Byron, courtesy of an Intro from Dean Rassmussen at FSU, Deb and I have met John and his confederate Peter today for a long, free-wheeling breakfast and discussions of opportunities to work together. Needless to say, you came up, several times. Your experiences with academic hostility to the subject of God, your great book (which you need to send them a copy of...:...)
"More God, Less Crime", and current academic interests, and other points to numerous.

God is telling me that you need to meet. Trust me on this one, and you may trust each other upon my assurance. I think you will also like each other.

Allison--

You are most welcome. Glad to hear the mtg. went very well. Let's plan to talk early next week (Monday, Tuesday or Wed.) at your convenience to discuss follow-up/next steps. I'm on the road Thursday (Orlando) and Friday (Tampa). Best regards.

Jesse

We just had a stunning meeting. The connection got buttressed, Providentially, by a connection with Slade O'Brien, a senior VP at Americans for Prosperity. He gave me a ride to the airport the morning after I conducted his uncle's (Tom Slade, the former Republican Party chair and my mentor) funeral service in Jax two weeks ago.

We clicked on all levels. Father, I have introduced John to my buddy David Miller ("Faith at Work" from Oxford Press, Greenwich Business Council, and the Avodah (Hebrew for faith and for work) Institute), and both him and Peter has sidekick to our buddy Byron Johnson.

This connection is golden. Thank you.

Allison/Deb--

FYI--during our recent mtgs. with John Hardin, our primary contact person with the Charles Koch Foundation, both David Rasmussen and I mentioned to him the Project on Accountable Justice. John was very interested in learning more about it and asked that we send him an information packet about it so that he could become more familiar with it. Would you please e-mail or mail John information about the following PAJ items:

- <!--[if !supportLists]-->● <!--[endif]-->Goals/objectives

John shared with us that the Charles Koch Foundation is beginning to shift its research focus away from economic freedom issues/concerns and instead concentrate on ways to improve one's personal economic situation. Under that broad umbrella could be topics such as ways to improve economic literacy, economic security issues that impact the elderly and an expanding aging population and the economic costs/impact of the U.S. criminal justice system (at the federal, state and local levels) on individual citizens both inside and outside the system. The last item triggered our discussion about PAJ. John was especially interested in hearing about efforts to develop new metrics and benchmarks for evaluating and assessing the effectiveness (or ineffectiveness) of current criminal justice practices. What would really catch John's/Koch Foundation's interest would be new tools/metrics to measure the economic costs/impact (both short and long-term) of the present criminal justice system on individual inmates and specific target populations within the system.

After you send John the PAJ packet, I would suggest that you follow-up with him to discuss PAJ in further detail and ask about meeting with him at his office in Arlington one of the next times you're in DC. Thanks in advance for sending John the PAJ packet.

Jesse
